

BOXWOOD TRIUMPHS AT THE MCA AWARDS

- Project of the Year for Balfour Beatty
- Performance Improvement in the Private Sector for Balfour Beatty
- Highly Commended for Change Management in the Private Sector for Guardian News & Media

25 April 2014, Boxwood, the award winning management consultancy, triumphed at this year's Management Consultancy Association (MCA) Awards, held in London last night, scooping the top award - Project of the Year - for their work with Balfour Beatty, this project was also the winning entry in the Performance Improvement in the Private Sector category. Boxwood was also highly commended in the Change Management in the Private Sector category for their work with Guardian News & Media. The win represents the culmination of an exceptional year for the team.

Commenting on the evening's success, Chris Wakerley MBE, Managing Director of Boxwood, said "To be recognised for the breadth of our work and the results we've seen delivered, and to win the overall project of the year award from such a strong shortlist is testament to the calibre of our consultants and the expertise and dedication they bring to each and every assignment. We are privileged to work with such ambitious companies who are willing to take the brave steps necessary to succeed in today's challenging business environment, and we are very proud that this work is recognised by these prestigious awards."

Last night's success brings Boxwood's total number of wins at the MCA awards to ten in the past eleven years.
